

An Author Among Us

A very talented ICOF employer, Ryan Nelson, who along with support from his staff is in the creative process of writing his first novel, “The Crusades of Captain Rye and His Renegades”.

Through the use of role play, word association and technology, Ryan is able to create characters and scenes that are crafted into the engaging story. His characters are loosely based (you could say) on friends, family and staff and find themselves in all sorts of precarious situations.

But not only is this about creating a story, Ryan is reaching out into the greater community with messages and pirates treasures in a bottle and engaging people to share their treasure finds and connect via social media. Ryan has fans as far off as Great Britain!

Ryan is excited to share his work with everyone, so please check out the novel, follow his posts and leave comments.

He is published on the site wattpad – and weebly and you can follow progress on Facebook.
